PORTER SANITARIUM AND HOSPITAL

A DEBT REPAID

Traveling businessman Henry Porter was pleased with the care he had received at two different Adventist sanitariums in California. And when he received a 45-cent check as a refund for an overpayment, he sent it back, stating he who was the one indebted to the staff for their "kind and careful treatment and attention." These experiences inspired Mr. Porter to build an Adventist sanitarium in his hometown of Denver in 1930.
